There are many roads in the country. They lead north, east, south and west. Most of them lie beside green fields, along flowered highways, with God's blue sky above. They lead to a friend's farm, a friend's fireside. Then there is the road that leads to the city. On that road, ambition beckons, and temptation cries "Come! I'll lead you to your fondest hopes and dreams!" And many young folks answer that call. Some never come back, and others come back to die. Life is never the same to those who have taken the Road to the City. They leave behind them God's sweet peace and contentment.. There are many roads in the city where one may walk. Some are called Ambition, Disappointment, Bitterness and Tears. Oh, if the dear ones could come back, and be the same!
